Heading tag found: <H1> Good Work

Heading tag: <H2> not found. Needs Attention

Heading tag found: <H3> Good Work

You don't have empty heading tags. Good Work

It is important to use heading tags to show the document structure. Search engines use the headings to index the structure and content of the page and users skim the page by its headings. <H1> headings should be main headings, followed by <H2> headings, then the less important <H3>. You should write headings with search engines and users in mind using keywords intelligently.

Content Analysis

You have 1473 words on this page. Good Work

Google loves content. Our recommendation is to have a minimum word count of 1,500 words for pages you want to rank well in the search engines.

The Text/HTML ratio is 12.59% on this page. Needs Attention

This percentage refers to the visible text ratio, as opposed to HTML elements, image tags and other non-visible information. A good Text/HTML ratio is anywhere between 25% and 70%. We recommend that you either increase (if below 25%) or decrease (if above 70%) the Text/HTML ratio of the page. If you need help with your Text/HTML ratio, contact us.

Sitemap.xml file exists: Visit the sitemap Excellent!

A sitemap is a file where you can list the pages of the site to tell the search engines about the organization of the site content. Search engine crawlers read this file to more intelligently crawl the site.

Robots.txt file exists. Visit the robots.txt file Excellent!

A robots.txt file is a text file that stop search engine crawlers from crawling certain pages of the site. It is essentially a list of commands that tell search engine crawlers which URLs they can or cannot retrieve. You need a robots.txt file only if the site includes content that you don't want the search engine to index.

Code Analysis

Inline CSS found. `Needs Attention`

Inline CSS is useful for applying a unique style to a single HTML element. However, it often increases load time and decreases performance. We recommend that you do not use Inline CCS. If you need help removing the Inline CSS from the site, contact us.

Google Author Markup (rel="author") found. `Good Work`

Authorship markup is no longer supported by Google but is not gone forever. We recommend that you leave the rel="author" markup in your site's content.

Schema.org not found. `Needs Attention`

Schema.org is a collaboration by Google, Microsoft and Yahoo! to improve the Web by creating a structured data markup schema supported by major search engines. You should mark up the site using this schema. If you need help with the markup, contact us.
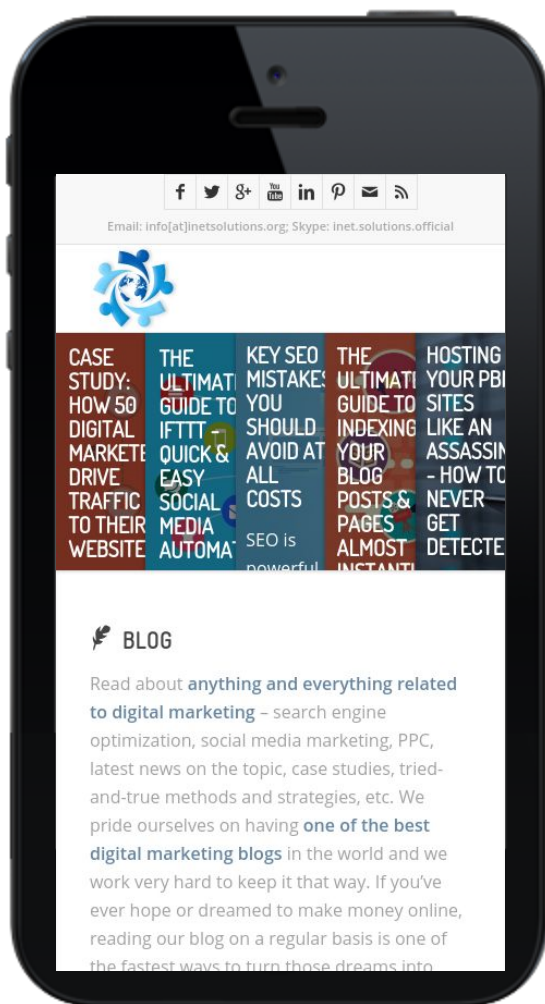

Iframe not found. `Good Work`

Google and other search engines support frames and iframes to the extent that they can. However, frames can cause problems for search engines because they don't correspond to the conceptual model of the Web.
